Over Quarter Of A Million For Point Loma And Beach Schools

OCEAN BEACH ALLOTTED $100,000

New Buildings, Additional Playgrounds And More Equipment In Budget

New schools, purchases of additional grounds and new school sites, equipment and other needs of the San Diego school system are provided for in a $4,350,000 bond issue election decided upon by the Board of Education in a resolution passed last Monday night. The election will be held March 29. The itemized bond issue study sheets for both the high school and elementary school districts show a grand total of $1,850,000 being asked for the former and $2,500,000 for the latter. The beach districts and Point Loma are apportioned as follows for a grand total of $298,000.

Point Loma Senior and Junior buildings, or additions, $100,000; ground improvements, $5,000; equipment, $20,000. Total $125,000.

Point Loma Senior, new site, $10,000.

Ocean Beach, buildings or additions, $89,000; new sites or additions, $10,000; ground improvements, $1,000. Total $100,000.

Pacific Beach, new sites or additions, $16,000.

Loma Portal, buildings or additions, $16,000; new sites or additions, $30,000; ground improvements, $1,000. Total $47,000.

All city schools, equipment, $150,000.

Summing up the grand total for Point Loma and the beach section shows an allotment of over a quarter of a million dollars for educational advantages under the proposed bond issue.

VOTERS TO PASS UPON FOUR AMENDMENTS TO CITY CHARTER

According to a decision by the city council this week four proposed amendments to the city charter will be submitted to the voters at the April election.

No 1—Setting aside lands in Balboa park for zoological purposes and allowing the zoo two cents on each $100 assessed valuation annually.

No. 2—Making the time between the city primary and the regular municipal election three weeks instead of two weeks, to give the city clerk more time to prepare for the second election.

No.3—Requiring candidates for office to file nominating petitions with city clerk twenty-one days before election instead of fifteen days at present.

No. 4—Permitting the city to sell salvage, junk, leases and real estate under sealed bids, and not alone by auction as now required by charter.

PRESIDENT ED F. COOPER MAKING PROGRESSIVE PLANS FOR COUNTY EMPLOYEES

The recent theatre party of the County Employees' Association proved a social and financial success and President Ed F. Cooper says preparations are already under way for the annual picnic to be held on May 15. It is stated that although the association is at present created and organized for social purposes, the success attendant upon its recent efforts in this line are such that President Cooper is formulating a plan to combine these activities with certain fraternal and benevolent features applicable to the entire membership of over eight hundred.

L. C. Maire has secured a permit for the construction of a frame cottage and garage on Cabrillo Terrace at a cost of $4,000.

JUDGE CHAMBERS FREE OF OBLIGATION IN MAYORALTY RACE

"What is it worth to the beach sections of the city to have in the Mayor's seat a man who understands the problems of our communities?" an Ocean Beach resident asked a group of neighbors yesterday in discussing the present mayoralty race. An it was unanimously agreed that the benefits which would result from the election of a beach resident would be so pronounced that Judge Claude L. Chambers should get the solid vote, March 22 of every beach community.

"This does not mean that Ocean Beach or Mission Beach or other seaside communities are going to get special favors," the Chambers' supporter pointed out. "When Chambers announced his candidacy he pledged himself to serve every section and every citizen without partiality and for the greates good to the greatest number. And you can bet that he will live up to that and every other promise he makes."

Judge Chambers it is declared, has made no alliance with any other candidate for office; has made no promise of employment to any one and will go into the office, if elected, entirely free of obligation to any faction or group.

STRAND THEATRE

Saturday, Mae Murray in "Valencia." What a girl was Valencia! Never another like her! Tantalizing, gay, beautiful Mae Murray has the time of her life romping through this fascinating romance of sunny Spain, this picture is her biggest hit since The Merry Widow. The comedy will be Clyde Cook in "Moonlight and Noses" the "Sky Tribe" will be the scenic, there will also be the news weekly.

Sunday and Monday, Bebe Daniels in "Stranded In Paris," a smart highly romantic comedy in the Bebe Daniels style. Bebe is the timid browbeaten shop girl, wins a trip to Paris and becomes stranded without a cent. Mistaken for a well known countess, her adventures take her from one hilarious situation to another and is one continous laugh. You seen her in the "Campus Flirt" now see this one. "Don't Tell Dad" is the comedy, also the popular fables.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Douglas Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers." Most everybody has read or heard of the "Three Musketeers" and the picture will live forever, it is like all the other Fairbank's pictures it is full of action and pep and this is one of the best picture he has ever made. There will be no advance in prices on this picture. The comedy will be "George Runs Wild" also the news weekly.

Thursday and Friday, Dorothy Mckail and Jack Mulhall in "Just Another Blonde." The story is about the pal of the hero falls in love with a young girl. He schemes to have the woman-hating hero meet her that he might fall in love with her. The hero falls in love at first sight but because he thinks his pal loved her he feels guilty. It required an areoplane accident before it brought happiness to all. On the same program will be the eighth chapter of Buffalo Bill, and "Matrimony Blues," a comedy.

"The Pauper's Funeral"

WRITTEN FOR "THE BEACH NEWS"

By DAVID C. CROSBY, Ocean Beach, California

The Colonel then said: "I will tell you about that also. Duncan and I were standing near a railway, when a train came thundering down the line, and as it drew near us, a little child ran onto the track. Without a thought of consequences, Duncan rushed for the child and got it clear, but not so himself—for the terrible wheels caught his foot and mangled it cruelly.

Now his dreams were again shattered! In the hospital the surgeons said the foot and leg was so badly crushed that it was past mending, and must be cut off. Duncan positively forbade this, saying if they would do their best he would do the rest, so between them he had quite a good leg again, but it took a long time. In due time he could walk without limping, and those who did not know, would never guess how near he came to being a cripple.

Yet in all the misery, and disappointments, I had seen him pass through, I never heard him complain. But bravely he said, "How much worse it might be, suppose they had cut off my leg!"

For this deed of heroism he received a gold medal. This is it, and he held it up for us to see. The school and many outside of it raised a large fund to pay his expenses.

About all of the school petitioned those having authority, to let Duncan keep his place, which was granted. This pleased him. (Then to the undertaker): "How did you find out that the man in the poor house known as 'Joe Smith' was Duncan McClure?"

"I found the name tattooed on his back."

"You found the names done in two shades of ink, one name on each shoulder?" "Yes." "Well, said the Colonel, I saw them put there. While in the school, many of us talked about the necessity of having some mark by which a dead soldier could be recognized, and it was agreed by many of the men that the best way would be to have our names tattooed on our bodies. If on our arms or legs, they were liable to be lost, and the name go with it; so many of us had our names printed across our shoulders, where it would last as long as there was anything left. I saw his name put on, and he directed the printing of my name on my shoulders.

How thankful I am today, for our foresight; otherwise, this blessed body would now be lying in the potter's field in a pine box, and if the undertaker had not discovered it, and published it, I would never have known where his body lay. I have ordered the best casket that money can buy, for this relic of my noble friend, and it will not be laid in the potter's field, but on the highest point in our cemetery, and a monument of red granite from Scotland, the

President Bacigalupi Outlines Facts About The Bank Of Italy

NEARLY ONE MILLION CALIFORNIANS ARE CUSTOMERS OF CONSOLIDATED BANKS

Permission to consolidate the Bank of Italy and Liberty Bank of America, and operate the merged institutions under the name of the Bank of Italy, has been approved by the Federal Reserve Board, at Washington, and State Superintendent of Banks, Will C. Wood, it was announced this week. In commenting on the significance of the consolidation, James A. Bacigalupi president of the Bank of Italy, said:

"This is a partial realization,—acheived after years of obstruction and perverse opposition, of the worthy aspiration of the founder of our institution, A. P. Giannini. From the earliest days, when the organization embarked upon its program of statewide branch banking, it has been the purpose of Mr. Giannini to see established in every important community of California, the branch office of a strong, resourceful, democratic, progressive bank, operated for the benefit of, and owned and controlled by, the rank and file of the people of the State.

"During the period of nearly a quarter of a century since its establishment, the Bank of Itlay has experienced a steady and consistent growth, until today, with its aggregate deposits of $600,000,000., it ranks as the largest financial institution in the United States outside of New York City, and third among all the banks of the nation. The capital investment of its stockholders through the Bank of Italy and the Stockholders Auxiliary corporation is in excess of $75,000,000., insuring for every customer the maximum of protection, and for the communities in which its branches are maintained, ample and adequate loaning power.

"Nearly 1,000,000 people throughout California are now customers of the Bank of Italy, a clientele greater than that of any other bank in the country. Its numerous branches furnish every important and populous center of the state with complete, metropolitan banking service. Ownership of the Bank of Italy and Banciitaly corporation is vested in upwards of 35,000 stockholders, the residents of California, living in the various cities where the branch offices of the Bank of Italy are to be found. It may truly be said of the Bank of Italy, that its growth—like that of the native redwoods— is typically Californian. The 'tap-roots,' or the local offices of the institution extend into practically every community, and participate, in consequence, in the vast variety and diversification of the industries and resources of California. There is no other institution more intimately identified with, or more inherently a part of, the future destiny of this great commonwealth; nor is there another, throughout the nation itself, in which the ownership is so overwhelmingly vested in the people.

"It is obvious that California is certain to gain in prestige by possessing the third largest bank in America, sources of Californi. There is no and as ardent Californians, we can scarcely be unmindful of whatever may redound to the benefit of the state in which the institution was cradled, and in which it has experienced such prosperity."

"'How is your new secretary?' a friend asked of Jones.

"'Great,' answered Jones. 'Already she has things so tangled up in the office that I can't get along without her.'"

Golden State
News of Interest to All

Approximately 100 new houses are to be built in the valley section of Burbank at once, according to reports.

The formal dedication of the new $100,000 St. Josephs Catholic church in East Bakersfield took place Sunday, January 23.

A record for the first two weeks of the year was smashed when Santa Monica building permits for that period reached $194,643.

The 1927 raisin festival at Fresno will be celebrated on Saturday, April 30. This was decided by a unanimous action of the California Raisin Festival association.

Real estate and oil activity in Huntington Beach during the past year has caused the expenditure of more than $30,000,000, it is estimated by bankers, oil men and real estate dealers.

Dr. A. C. Baker, entomologist of the United States department of agriculture, has arrived at the citrus experiment station at Riverside, to direct a campaign against the white fly, deadly citrus pest.

With Sacramento selected as the convention city for high school principals of California, plans are already being worked out for the entertainment of the visitors, who will be in the Capitol City several hundred strong April 11 to 15.

With $25,000 already subscribed by Stockton Jewish people toward the proposed new Jewish Community Center to be erected in that city a committee including non-Jewish business men of the city has been formed to raise the remaining necessary $25,000.

Plans are being completed by an architect for a two-story frame and stucco addition to the Sunday school section of the Presbyterian church of Livermore. There will be class rooms, a rest room and a large kitchen. The improvements will cost about $20,000.

Details of Governor C. C. Young's budget plan for permanent improvements at the eight state curative institutions became known with compilation of figures showing that the new administration intends to devote $2,186,000 during the next two years to construction of new buildings and repair work deemed necessary at the various hospitals.

Improvements which will greatly increase the capacity of the packing plant of the David Hewes Orange and Lemon association at El Modena have been started. The work is being done jointly by the Southern Pacific company, owner of the building and the association, which has a long-time lease on the property. The cost is estimated at $25,000.

Southern California again assumes prominence as a fast-growing industrial center through the establishment of a new industry, the manufacture of airplanes, which will focus the attention of the aviation world upon Los Angeles. The International Aircraft Corporation will shortly begin production on a large number of planes to be shipped to different parts of the globe.

In the space of a few short years, southern California has forged to the front in the United States in an industry which, according to department of agriculture experts, is destined to become an important one in this country, the breeding of rabbits for fur and market purposes. Fifty per cent of the rabbit fur produced in the United States is bred in the Los Angeles district.

Officials of the Clover Valley Lumber company at Loyalton, announce that plans are already under way for rebuilding of the buildings destroyed by fire recently. The loss is estimated at $125,000 fully covered by insurance. Besides the box factory, the planning mill and two filled warehouses were burned. A hot box on a bandsaw in the box factory is believed to have started the blaze.

William C. Morrison, Marysville, head of the agricultural department of the Marysville Union High school, has secured a permit to build a residence and garage to cost in the neighborhood of $3,000. Students in the manual training department of the school are to take part in the construction of the buildings, to give them practical experience in carpentering and other lines. They will work under the contractor.

A phenominal growth of the California National Guard during the past three years is reflected in the biennial report of Adjutant General R. E. Mittlestaedt, which has just been placed in the hands of Governor C. C. Young. Since January 1, 1924, the strength of the organization has leaped from 3,200 men and officers to 5,600 at the present time, the maximum strength authorized by the United States War Department.

More motorists are coming to Pasadena this winter from Michigan than from any other state, according to the records of the Pasadena office of the Automobile Club of Southern California. The calculation is made on the basis of out-of-state motorists who have called at the office to have their license registration changed. Iowa is second and Minnesota third, according to office reports. Approximately 350 of these applications have been received in the last two weeks. Every state in the Union is represented except Rhode Island, South Carolina, Georgia, Utah and Wyoming.

California's newest hydro-electric development, the Balch plant of the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation, will be completed early this month, marking the first unit in a contemplated $50,000,000 power project on the Kings river. From the date of preliminary surveys, about seven years of effort and over $5,000,000 have been expended in the construction of the plant, which will provide an additional 40,000 horsepower to meet the growing needs of the San Joaquin valley. The penstock, which is the harness for the water of the mountain stream, is the highest in the United States and is equipped with automatic controls making it the latest development in power plant construction.

Federal Judge Kerrigan, San Francisco took out of the hands of a jury and ordered non-suited an action in which the California and Hawaiian Sugar company sought damages of $270,000 from the Mason By-Products company of Sausalito, for alleged violation of contract on shipments of molasses from Hawaii. Judge Kerrigan, in upholding the motion of Attorney Theodore Roche for the defendant company, held that there was no actual contract between the parties. The sugar company alleged that the Mason company agreed to buy 30,000 tons of molasses at $9 a ton, and had repudiated the contract.

Incorporated for $150,000, two organizations plan the manufacture, sale and distribution of the only cold light of its kind ever discovered. Secretary of State Frnak C. Jordan heads both organizations, and each will be capitalized at $75,000. The cold light renders a glow in the dark, which makes the reading house numbers and finding of switch buttons easy during the night. The light is manufactured by a secret process, and is produced without use of regularly established glows. Headquarters of the two companies are to be located in the northern and southern part of the state.

The probability of construction of the Scott's Flat reservoir and dam being started during the present year was expressed at Grass Valley by Manager A. L. Wisker of the Nevada Irrigation district at a meeting of the directors of the district. The site, which is already owned by the district, is about six miles east of Nevada City and the plans call for a dam 200 feet in height. It is not planned to build to that height at the present time, but it was stated that an expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars would be necessary in connection with the first unit.

Declaring the existence of an "emergency" in which the whole of Kern county is involved, the board of supervisors made an appropriation of $1,500 to be used in exterminating mice in the dry basin of Beuna Vista lake. The appropriation was made after Whit C. Barber, county horticultural commissioner in charge of control work, had introduced S. E. Piper, rodent specialist of the United States biological survey. Piper reported to the supervisors on his two-day survey of the infestation.

All Stockton is rejoicing over the news of President Coolidge's signing of the rivers and harbors appropriation bill which authorizes the federal appropriation of $2,407,500 towards the consummation of the local deep-water project. Stockton has voted bonds to the amount of $3,000,000 for its share of the cost of bringing the sea to its waterfront. However, an appropriation by the state government of $419,999 will make it necessary for Stockton to expend but $2,581,000.

The Sacramento Northern Railway company has applied to the state railroad commission for authority to discontinue its service between Suisun and Vacaville over the Fairfield route. the railroad company stated that although it had operated five trains daily and six on Sunday over the Fairfield route, it carried but four passengers a trip, and was forced to operate at a loss, due to increasing transportation facilities between Suisun and Vacaville.

E. E. Holly, Suisun, was appointed chief deputy superintendent of banks under Will C. Wood. Definite annoucement was made by Holly, setting at rest rumors which have prevailed since Holly resigned his position as cashier and general manager of the First National Bank of Suisun, which position he has held for twenty-three years. Holly will maintain offices in San Francisco and he expects to assume his new duties in a few weeks.

The cornerstone of the new American Legion hall, Glendale, was laid with appropriate ceremonies, when members of the Glendale Legion Post members of the Legion auxiliary and legionnaires from various San Fernando valley and Los Angeles posts attended to witness the exercises.

Marking an epoch in Coronado building, construction of a $1,000,000 apartment hotel was started February 1 on a site oposite the Hotel Del Coronado. The building is to be of Class A construction, six stories high and the total cost will be $1,135,000, including the site.

Preliminary steps were taken recently by the city trustees of Nevada City, at a special session to begin the work of street improvement, improvement to the water system and the construction of a swimming pool, all of which were authorized by a bond election held last fall at which bonds in the sum of $72,000 were voted.

Work has started on the first unit of the Southern Pacific company's $187,000 freight house, automobile unloading track and switch yards, at Bakersfield, according to a contract signed with a Bakersfield firm calling for an expenditure of $41,000

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

(© by Dodd, Mead & Company.)

Oliver Cromwell

A MIDDLE-AGED farmer—red and swollen of face, slovenly of dress, dirty of linen, harsh of voice and woefully lacking in dignity—was so disgusted with political conditions in England in the first half of the Seventeenth century that he decided to emigrate to America. King Charles I refused him and his companions permission to go. In doing so the king virtually signed his own death warrant and the death warrant of "the divine right of kings." For the would-be emigrant was Oliver Cromwell.

It was a crucial time in England's history. Queen Elizabeth had been succeeded by James Stuart, son of Mary Queen of Scots. James, "who never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one," was succeeded by his son, Charles I. Charles inherited enough of the vile traits of his grandmother, Mary Queen of Scots, to make him thoroughly untrustworthy, despotic and inconsiderate of the people's rights.

He set aside the wishes of his subjects, as expressed through parliament; levied heavy and unjust taxes; pursued an unpopular foreign policy; was suspected of conspiring against the established religion of England.

In 1642 king and parliament came to an open rupture, and civil war swept England. Oliver Cromwell—farmer, legislator and stanch Presbyterian—was made captain in the parliamentary army. He was an eloquent preacher, but had no knowledge of war. Yet he was quickly promoted to a colonelcy and raised a cavalry regiment of Puritans (nicknamed "Ironsides"), whose powers of prayer and exhortation were only exceeded by their zeal for slaying royalists. With Bible in one hand and sword in the other, Cromwell led his invincible band of psalm-singing fighting men to victory after victory. The king's followers were known as "Royalists" or "Cavaliers"; the parliamentary army, from their close-cropped hair, being dubbed "Roundheads." Little by little, at Marston Moor, Naseby and elsewhere, the Roundheads broke down the royal power, until at last in 1646 Charles fled for refuge to his father's people, the Scotch. The thrifty Scottish lords promptly sold him to parliament (Cromwell being largely instrumental in the "purchase"), and he was brought back to England a prisoner.

Now that the king was captured, parliament did not know what to do with him. Cromwell and others sought for means by which Charles could still nominally reign while parliament should actually direct the government. But they could not trust the shifty monarch. So his adherents were cleared out of parliament, the house of lords dissolved, a special court was chosen and Charles was tried, condemned and in January, 1649, beheaded; Cromwell's name appearing third among the signers of the death warrant. Scotland, Ireland and Wales rebelled against this drastic act and Cromwell successively crushed the three revolts.

Parliament's methods did not wholly suit him, so he disbanded that body by force and formed another composed of his own friends. Two years later parliament made him sole governor of the British commonwealth with the title of "Lord Protector." He ruled wisely and well, winning the approval of the people at large by giving them added liberty. The nobles and the clerical element hated and feared him.

Parliament, wholly under his control, offered him the title of king. But the offer met with scant popularity in the nation at large. Quick to feel the popular pulse and doubtless fearing to share the fate of Caesar, Cromwell refused to accept the proffered honor.

In 1658—in his sixtieth year—Oliver Cromwell died. His son Richard—weak, amiable incompetent—succeeded him as lord protector; but anarchy at once broke out, and General Monk, Cromwell's right-hand man, was instrumental in bringing Charles' son, Charles II, back to England as king. After this restoration, Cromwell's body was dug up from its grave in Westminster Abbey and beheaded. The head was stuck on a pole in front of the abbey and the trunk was hung in chains on a Tyburn hill gibbet. A revulsion of feeling set in. England was tired of blue laws, puritanism, plain dress and piety. Forgetting that those things had saved her from corruption, perhaps from total ruin, the nation swung to the other extreme. Under Charles II gayety, frivolity and extravagance held sway, and Cromwell was denounced as a usurper.

It is hard to form a just idea of Oliver Cromwell. He was the first great republican, and the first Englishman to exploit successfully a government for and by the people. He also built up a political machine and system of bossism that is unsurpassed. His severity may be partially forgiven when one remembers that through that severity alone he was able to hold in check the many unquiet elements in his realm. He was the last and greatest of the Puritans; and with him died the physical power of puritanism in England.

He and puritanism were the strong, distasteful medicine which alone could cure his country's debilitated "body politic." His treatment of Ireland was unpardonable. His government of England was almost ideal.

NOVEL GOODS FOR SPORTS WEAR; SMILE APPROVAL ON FLOPPY BOWS

IT'S to be a gay, gay time in fashion town this coming season, according to signs and prophecies. Especially is this true in respect to clothes of sports classification, where color and design are conspiring to join in a giddy whirl of fascinating novelty.

As to the term, sports wear, the mode is making a very free use of it these days. The trend is to wear so-called sports attire for almost every occasion except the most formal. Surely, a sports frock as fetching as either of the models in this picture would give the woman of fashion perfect poise in the consciousness of being properly and charmingly costumed for almost any daytime event.

Two Fetching Sports Frocks.

There is an exquisite touch given to the blue crepella of which the frock to the left is made, in that the broad stripes have a sheen of silver metal in their weave. The semi-plaited skirt, the blouse-styling and the button trimming are all indicative of latest mode.

As to the clever frock to the right, while it is designed for midwinter resort wear, it also declares a coming spring trend. Bayadere striping on a yellow silken background bespeaks its vivid coloring.

Among who's who, and what's what in sports fabrics, stripes are in the vanguard. At the same time, however, that the mode is fairly shouting a spring song of stripes, stripes, stripes, to the world, appears a new star in the firmament of fashionable fabrics—plaid pongee silk. There are shantungs and rayon fabrics also in such gay stripings as bright green on a background in high shades of orange.

Prints of every description are the forecast for the ensuing months. Solid color used with prints is the big idea, also several solid tones used together. Especially will crepes and fine flannels be thus fashioned, that is, by combining different shades of the same material in a most ornamental way.

Black and white, also navy and white are outstanding in the program for spring sports wear. Embroidery in gay Rumanian colors will animate many of the forthcoming frocks, blouses and wraps.

The reign of the soft fabric frock is to continue, according to the foreword of leading fashionists. Which means that self-trimming will play an important part in the dress-styling program for spring. The gown of sheer and supple weave which expresses "beauty unadorned" in so far that it interprets style and grace solely through fabric manipulation, has captivated the fancy of women of fashion. Now that the new dress-goods showings include so many materials which are exquisitely supple or alluringly sheer, the vogue for the self-trimmed frock bids fair to out rival its past record.

Among self-trims heralded as important for spring, the big, floppy bow takes precedence over almost every form of fabric-manipulation. "When in doubt" gather the soft, yielding fabric into a huge bow at the front or the side, and the mode promises a smile of approval. This theory was happily put into practice by the creator of the charming afternoon dress of beige crepe shown to the right in the accompanying picture. It is just such artfully tied bows as is this one which one sees on the new Paris gowns sent to our shores for the gratification of milady who plans to winter under southern sunny skies.

Fortunate is it that crepe satin yields so effectively to the modish self-trim treatment, for crepe satin is forespoken as a favorite material for spring. The black satin two-piece dress in the picture features a blouse which ties in a soft bow to one side. The collar, cuffs and sash are lined with a soft shade of pink crepe.

There are ways and ways of introducing the bow effect into dress design. A late model shows widths of material brought from the shoulders, culminating in a bow just below an inset vestee, this bow carrying streamers which fall to the skirt hemline.

It is said that chiffon prints will be more popular than ever. Recent imported frocks of gay print exploit the self-trim theme, especially stressing bows and side drapes.

Self-Trimming Much in Favor.

A slender acquaintance with the world must convince every man that actions, not words, are the true criterion of the attachment of friends. That the most liberal professions of good will are very far from being the surest marks of it.—George Washington.

FOR DINNER

A nice soup for a nourishing dish for dinner or luncheon is:

Split Pea Soup.—Soak a half pound or less of split peas overnight; in the morning put to cook in water to cover. In a separate kettle place one or two pig's hocks, add plenty of cold water and put to cook. When tender add the peas and seasoning to the hocks and simmer until well-seasoned through.

Chili Stew.—Take one and one-half pounds of round steak, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of olive oil, six tablespoonfuls of chopped onion, four cloves of garlic, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of worchestershire sauce, three teaspoonfuls of chili powder, two teaspoonfuls of salt, three cupfuls of tomatoes, and one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour.

Fruit Salad.—Dissolve a package of lemon gelatin as usual, add half cupful of finely diced celery, a cupful of diced apple, a few almonds shredded, one-half a green pepper cut into fine strips, a bit of pineapple finely cut, or a pear or two, either canned or fresh. When the gelatin is beginning to thicken stir in the prepared fruit and vegetables. Set away to mold and serve on lettuce with a rich dressing.

Raised Muffins.—Take three cupfuls of warm water, one-half cupful of shortening, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of yeast, mix as stiff as can be stirred, let rise, stir again, then cover closely and set in a cool place. Put the muffins in the tins about four hours before time to bake. Bake in a hot oven.

Glazed Onions With Steak.—Cook small even-sized onions until soft, but firm enough to hold their shape. Make a sirup of one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of stock; cook to the soft boil stage, add the onions, and continue to cook for two or three minutes. Remove the onions when the sirup begins to brown and place the onions around the steak on a hot platter.

Emergency Salad.—Cut a few bits of cheese into neat cubes, chop six or eight olives, break a few walnut meats into pieces, add a few seeded and skinned grapes, an orange and a sour pickle, all sliced thin. Mix all together and fill lemon shells with the mixture. Serve on paper dolly covered plates.

Banana and Apple Salad.—Line a bowl with lettuce. Slice three bananas and four apples, mix well and place on lettuce. To one-half cupful of peanut butter add one-fourth cupful of French dressing and pour over the salad.

For the Family Meal.

A good nourishing drink which you need not fear to give to the little people in the family, is barley coffee. Prepare it by roasting until a deep brown, then grind it and use it as coffee, adding a tablespoonful to a cupful of water. Serve with sugar and cream. This is a nourishing drink to serve fever patients when recovering.

Fruit Cake.—Take one cupful of bread sponge, one cupful of currants, one cupful of dates, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of figs, one cupful of raisins, one cupful each of figs and citron, one cupful of flour and one-half cupful of shortening. Mix all together with the bread sponge. Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in a tablespoonful of water, then add one teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon. Let rise for three hours or until light. Bake one hour in a moderate oven.

Fruit Salad.—Remove the skin and seeds from a cupful of white grapes. Cut three bananas into small cubes and cover with lemon juice. Cut six oranges into small pieces and mix with the salad dressing. Arrange in nests of lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Steamed Chocolate Pudding.—Beat one egg, add one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and one square of chocolate melted in one tablespoonful of water. Steam twenty minutes. This makes eight small puddings.

Sauce for Chocolate Pudding.—Separate the whites and yolks of two eggs and beat well, add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of vanilla and a pinch of salt to the beaten yolks, then fold in the beaten whites; cook over hot water until steaming hot. Add the vanilla after taking the sauce from the heat.

Children's Dessert.—Steam as many slices of bread as needed, butter well and pour over them a hot sauce of canned fruit, such as raspberries, blueberries, or any kind that is at hand. Serve hot with or without cream.

Judge Chambers Says:

I am a candidate for Mayor of San Diego, where I have lived for 17 years.

I believe San Diego can do with LESS TAXES by a vigorous drive to put MORE EFFICIENCY in the business affairs of this city.

I have not made, and will not make, any promises to any person or group, beyond my public pledge to do my level best, if elected, to make San Diego a cleaner, bigger and better city.

I have no alliances, direct or indirect, with any other candidate for any city office. If I am elected Mayor I will earnestly cooperate with the City Council to promote good government and a business administration of our city affairs.

If elected Mayor, I pledge myself to serve every section and every citizen without partiality and for the greatest good to the greatest number.

If you can consistently support my candidacy on this homely and straightforward platform, I will sincerely appreciate your vote and help.

I respectfully urge every voter to vote at the primaries on March 22nd whether you vote for Chambers or not.

Sincerely yours,

LIVES THAT ARE BURNED

A baby and its pet puppy were found by San Diego firemen early this week burned to death in a room on the top floor of a downtown residence.

Recently in a New York fire the rescue party chopped Fireman Joseph Heslin out of the icy ruins, he was found frozen to death, the frozen nozzle still in his hands.

Careless people who think that insurance covers all the loss in fires, do not count the women, the children, the firemen who must pay the price. Insurance is the great financial salve and palliative the anaesthetic that mercifully takes away some of the sting. But insurance, however admirable, cannot restore life.

The day is coming when a person guilty of fire carelessness will be held responsible for his damaging acts, just as an individual is now held responsible for carelessness which causes damage to another's person or property.

BALBOA THEATRE

Clothed in ermine and crowned in glory, Corinne Griffith is said to be more beautiful than ever in her newest picture "The Lady in Ermine," which comes to the Balboa theatre for three days, starting today.

Playing what is considered the greatest emotional characterization of her whole motion picture career, Miss Griffith's newest dramatic offering is laid amid a martial background of Italy during the Austrian invasion of 1810.

Einar Hanson, former European stage and screen star, who recently came to this country and caused an immediate sensation as a film leading man, plays opposite Corrine Griffith. Francis X. Bushman, plays the role of the famous Austrian military leader, General Dostal.

Al Lyons and his Balboa Music Masters will furnish the musical entertainment for the screen and stage presentations. Lloyd Hamilton appears in his latest comedy "Peaceful Officer," which is said to rank in a class with his recent picture, "Jolly Tars."

Monday, Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday, Bebe Daniels will make her appearance at the Balboa Theatre in her latest screen success, "A Kiss in the Taxi", a translation from a hilarious French farce-comedy, and which permits Miss Daniels opportunity to show her talents.

CABRILLO THEATRE

In "Loves Greatest Mistake, Evelyn Brent demonstrates clearly her versatility. As Mame Walsh the home-loving department store dowd in "Love 'em and leave 'em" with the sister who tried to run away with her beau, she earned the plaudits of the critics. In this picture now runing at the Cabrillo theatre, she is cast in a role that calls for an entirely different type of performance.

Iris Gray, Frank Morgan, and Betty Byrne complete the cast. Direction is by Edward Sutherland.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

DO IT TODAY!

FREQUENTLY in these days we hear it said among those who habitually dawdle and put off, that "tomorrow will do! Tomorrow I shall feel in a better mood, and then I will turn over a new leaf and show my employer what there is in me.

"I'm not in tune today. I lost a bit of sleep last night and am nervous and irritable. I must have my amusements, though, or I shall grow stale."

Unfortunately for these people who tarry and wait and lag, tomorrow never arrives. It is just as far off as it was a fortnight ago, just as elusive and deceptive.

The pernicious habit of dallying, of postponing until tomorrow while the world keeps calling for action today, is one of the most ruinous in the lives of the young.

We are all on speaking terms with today, but tomorrow is a stranger, famous for ingenuity in dangling hope before our sleepy eyes and tricking us year after year.

In the closet of good resolutions, where we sometimes secrete ourselves in order to turn the leaves of the past, and scan the hastily scribbled entries we have put upon them, we make this unwelcome discovery with a pang of regret.

To be perturbed and clouded at such times is natural, but if we continue to hang fire, to persist in disregarding today and still keep up our silly flirtation with tomorrow, we do these things at our peril.

We grow less resolute and in a little while we become abject creatures of misfortune.

It takes two to make your success, your employer and yourself.

And what you do, the manner and promptness in which you do it, is your greatest asset, and ought to be your chief concern.

If you regularly put off today's duties until tomorrow, keep disregarding today's blandishments and cheating yourself with the foolish idea that you will in some miraculous way "catch up" you are simply speeding the hour when your employer will abruptly dissolve partnership with you.

And the main side to this is that by waiting for tomorrow you are deliberately hastening your ultimate downfall and ruining your future prospects.

SAWS

By Viola Brothers Shore

FOR THE GOOSE—

IT'S easier to strangle the first desire than feed all the ones that's born from it.

Tryin' to learn a kid some'm without first arousin' his interest is hammerin' cold iron.

If a woman keeps changin' her maids all the time it's a sign of some'm. And if she has the same one for ten years it's a sign of some'm, too. Dumb luck.

FOR THE GANDER—

Lawyers, judges and doctors is nice people to meet socially.

The thing about learnin' ain't so much that it makes you fit comp'ny for other folks, but for yourself.

When he can't get his car to go, the last thing a guy usually thinks about, is if there's enough gas in the tank.

And instead of bein' relieved when he finds out that's all that's the matter, he gen'rally gets madder than a one-armed flute player whose nose itches.

WHAT THE GRACIOUS HOSTESS SAYS:

By DELLA THOMPSON LUDES

INFORMAL DINNER MENU

THE informal dinner menu should consist of a soup, a meat or meat substitute, two vegetables, olives, pickles, or other relish. Grapefruit is often served instead of soup, especially in warm weather. The salad should be served separately, and it is a pretty custom to make it at the table after everything has been removed except the bread and butter plates and glasses. Making a salad may be a very artistic performance, and a hostess never appears to better advantage than when her capable hands are moving gracefully over a salad bowl, or among the cups and silver.

Suppose we are going to have a lettuce and tomato salad. The lettuce should have been prepared previously, and allowed to stand for some time in ice water. It has been shaken perfectly dry and brought to the table in a large bowl as handsome as possible.

The tomatoes should be of uniform size and not too large. They have been peeled by pouring boiling water over them and allowed to chill. The centers have been dug out. They are brought in on a glass plate, or one of old blue china. A bowl of mayonnaise and a plate of small pot cheese balls are placed before the hostess, together with the salad plates. With the salad fork and spoon she arranges a few lettuce leaves on a plate, places one tomato in the center, fixes a ball of the pot cheese in the excavation and pours mayonnaise over the top.

If the salad is one which requires a French dressing, such as lettuce or lettuce and cucumber salad, then a bowl is brought in which the dressing may be mixed. A pretty tray should hold the oil, salt, pepper, paprika, vinegar, and a dish of cracked ice. A spoon for mixing, either of wood or silver, is placed beside the tray.

Serving the dessert at the table is also a more pleasing custom for the informal dinner than bringing it in from the kitchen. A mold of pudding, ice cream, or mousse on a pretty platter, with a pile of dainty plates, a serving knife and spoon, is an attractive sight. A delicately browned pie, baked in a glass dish and placed before the hostess will whet a lagging appetite. Pie is not a dessert for the formal dinner, but is quite appropriate for the informal.

ALWAYS A HOME

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE door is narrow, the roof is low,
Around the border the brambles grow,
It's a poor little house—but remember though
It somehow is home to some one.
One little lamp like a candle-beam,
Shines down the path with a flickering gleam—
Ah, humble the humble house may seem,
But it always is home to some one.

A little room with a single chair
And a table here and a sofa there,
Yet one sweet thought makes it always fair—
It's somehow a home to some one.
And what of the castle on the hill?
What makes it beautiful? All that will
Is the thought the castle, the castle still,
Is simply a home to some one.

Oh, never smile at the humble place,
For God has given them each their grace,
Each house a look as he gave a face
Yes, each is a home to some one.
Oh, never think that the castle wall
Looks fair because of the gilt and all,
It's only a bed when the shadows fall,
It's only a home to some one.

For never a cot looks poor to me,
Nor a castle grand, though grand it be;
Whatever I see I only see
A spot that's a home to some one.
And I know the God who gives some one here
Some place than all of the rest more dear
Will have up yonder, when death is near,
Some sort of a home for some one.

Mother's Cook Book

I like to think when the day is through
Of each good deed that I stopped to do
And there's a blessing for all the week
In some kind word that I ought to speak.
To ease a hurt and to wipe a tear
These are the virtues that bless the year,
And if I have lessened pain and strife
Then shall I be content with life.

GOOD EVERYDAY FOODS

Graham Pudding.

Take one cupful each of graham flour, white flour, molasses, sweet milk, raisins, one egg and one teaspoonful of soda. Warm the molasses, add soda, mix the flours and add a pinch of salt. Gradually add the milk and the egg well beaten and lastly the floured raisins with such spices or flavors as one desires. Nuts, citron, lemon and orange peel are all good. Steam two hours in a buttered mold or small pail. Serve with:

Pudding Sauce.—Cream half a cupful of butter, add gradually one cupful of powdered sugar; when well blended add two beaten eggs and the juice of a lemon.

Coconut Cream Pie.

Take two and one-half cupfuls of milk, three-fourths cupful of sugar, two-thirds cupful of pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of orange extract, one cupful of coconut, and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Prepare the custard, cook twenty minutes in a double boiler, adding the egg yolks two minutes before the twenty minutes are up. Pour into a baked pastry shell and sprinkle the coconut over the top. Place in the oven to brown lightly after covering with the beaten whites and sugar.

Skidding on the Ice

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

IT LOOKED as if all the young people in Cedar Rapids had decided to go skating on the old slough. The air was crisp and cold and the skaters had to keep moving in order to be comfortable.

"What would be the chance of building a big fire and having a round or two of hot dogs?" suggested Harry Smith as he joined a group of his friends who were inspecting an interesting and dangerous air hole in the ice.

"Fetch on the dogs. We'll build the fire," sang out another.

And then began a merry race to the woods' edge of the ice, where they all knew there would be plenty of firewood.

Standing to one side of the laughing group of young people had been a slender, thoughtful girl. She had been skating alone, and now that they had gone she felt indeed a stranger in a strange land.

She had arrived only that morning to visit her grandparents in a little suburb of Cedar Rapids that had been nicknamed Seldom Seen in its early and unbeautiful days. The old couple did not know very many young people, but they had assured Dorothy, when she had said she wanted to go skating that she would meet lots of "boys and girls" on the ice.

Dorothy was a good skater and, naturally, enjoyed the sport. She circled round and round the treacherous air holes and was the prettiest girl on the ice. She had come from Omaha, where the skating was good for several weeks each winter and she had learned many pretty figures as the new ice dances had come on.

She was thoroughly enjoying the good ice again and had skated over to the far end of the slough where the main road leads off to the town. So intent was she on a difficult stunt she was attempting in this remote bit of clearing that she did not see Harry Smith approaching with his arms full of packages.

"Oh, I'm so terribly sorry!" she exclaimed as she skidded backwards into him and knocked him down, scattering strings of sausage in every direction.

Harry recovered himself quickly and the two stood laughing into each others' eyes.

"I was wondering whether I could make it. I had too big a load," he explained.

"But it was all my fault—so stupid," insisted Dorothy, picking up the funny-looking sausage strings and trying to gather them into the bag.

"The rolls did not get messed up much," muttered Harry as he pushed them into a package.

"Wouldn't you let me help you carry them to their destination, perhaps?" asked Dorothy without ulterior motive.

"On one condition—that you join our crowd and help to cook and eat them," he said.

"All right—I'm game," said Dorothy, hugging a bag of rolls and a jar of mustard close to her bright-blue jersey.

"Are you—but of course you are—a stranger in Cedar Rapids?"

Dorothy admitted the charge. "I won't tell you my name. It wouldn't be proper. You must get some of the girls in your crowd—I saw them all when you planned this party—to introduce us or grandma and grandpa would have a fit," she fibbed glibly. Hadn't the dear old unsophisticated folks told her she would find plenty of children to skate with?

When the crowd saw Harry approaching with his lovely assistant there were many hasty and veiled remarks.

"Well, Harry," said Bob Tisdale, "I thought you said you were going to the butcher's not to the beauty shop."

Harry ignored this and called a girl friend to him. It did not take Dorothy long to explain who she was, and of course they all knew her grandparents. In less than five minutes she had been introduced to the hungry young people dancing about the big blazing fire.

Before Dorothy left late that afternoon she had been invited to a number of parties that were being given by members of the crowd she had been so informally dragged into.

"And here and now," said Harry Smith, "I invite you all to a moonlight skating party and barbecue. I don't know the date for I don't keep track of the moon, but I'll let you know."

Her ladyship, the moon, proved not to be bright enough for two more weeks, and by that time Harry had made inroads into the affections of Dorothy Howard. Even her simple grandparents began to surmise that the young people were more than mere "boys and girls." He tried to wait longer to tell her that he loved her, but as she was returning home on the following day he found it necessary to whisper on the ice the night of the party.

"But—we hardly know each other," protested Dorothy.

He overcame every argument, and when they all drank coffee from tin cups around the big fire the two almost told what had happened to them.

They did not need to say in so many words that they had fallen completely in love or that before many months Dorothy would return to Cedar Rapids to live among them.

Claims Everyone Can Now Have Good Health

Los Angeles Business Man Suffering Months From Constipation, Indigestion and Run-Down Condition Regains Health with Tanlac

Mr. Harry Franklin, a well-known Los Angeles manufacturer with offices at 918 Broadway, says: "My experience proves that nearly everyone can now have good health. After many months of indigestion and constipation, months that ended by my being in a badly run-down condition, I regained good health, new strength and calm nerves . . . Thanks to Tanlac.

"Imagine not being able to eat without suffering from tormenting pains and the burning sensation of indigestion. The poisons caused by sluggish liver and constipation ravaging my system, left me tired and draggy all the time, with no energy for my work.

"Then I turned to Tanlac, determined to give it a fair trial. From the first bottle it helped me. Within a few weeks I found myself with more energy than I had known in months, a fine appetite, good digestion—I feel that I could eat nails without harm—I am so built up in every way.

"I now enjoy robust health and work all day at top speed without tiring. But I have not stopped taking Tanlac, for it is the one way to continued good health, to top strength and energy. My wife, too, highly praises Tanlac. She is inclined to be delicate and has found that Tanlac has preserved her health and strength for many years. Everyone should take this wonderful tonic."

Tanlac has helped thousands of Californians. It is Nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula. The first bottle usually brings wonderful relief from pain. Keep up the treatment and you grow stronger, healthier, more robust.

Don't neglect your health, don't suffer from pain needlessly, begin taking this wonder tonic now. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today!

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

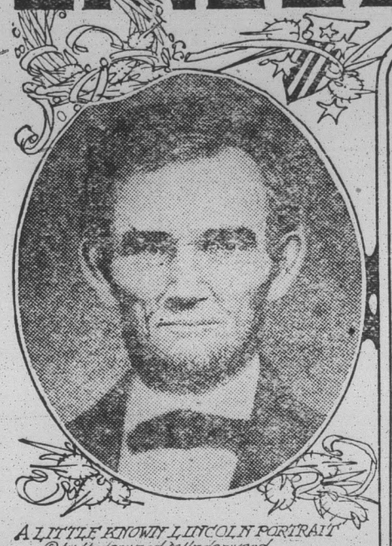
LINCOLNIANA, 1927



A LITTLE KNOWN LINCOLN PORTRAIT
©by Underwood & Underwood

The above little-known portrait of Lincoln is from a sketch made by Freeman Thorp in 1861 and shows Lincoln at the age of fifty-two. This is said to be the only portrait of the war President drawn entirely from life. Years after Lincoln died, Thorp, who was the painter of four Presidents, studied the existing pictures of Lincoln, but found none so true to life as his penciled sketch. With his vivid memory of the President as he had known him in 1861 he painted the above portrait.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ABRAHAM LINCOLN is undoubtedly the most written-about American, not even excepting the immortal George Washington. Although more than sixty years have elapsed since he passed from the stage of history, through all these years there has been no let-up in the number of books, magazine and newspaper articles and stray bits of information which have been presented to a public, apparently always eager for more light upon the personality and career of this simple Illinois backwoodsman who rose to a position of world importance. In fact the mass of new information about Lincoln seems to grow instead of diminish as time passes and, if 1926 is any criterion, the year 1927 will see an even greater amount of Lincolniana added to our national history.

In the past few years iconoclasts have been busy turning the searchlight upon the lives of our great with the professed desire to "tell the whole truth" about them, including those "truths" which will show that they were much less great than popular opinion has believed them to have been. Through all this idol-shattering, the great figure of Lincoln has stood virtually untouched, the stature of his greatness undiminished. Apparently any new "truths" about him which may be revealed by the historians cannot change in the least, either, the verdict of history upon him. Least of all can they change the love for him of the common people, whom, as he once said, "the Lord must love, because he made so many of them."

The accessories to the Lincolniana of 1926 proved again that the amount of new material, in the sense that it is not widely known, about him is seemingly inexhaustible. Outstanding among them, perhaps, were Carl Sandburg's two-volume study of "Abraham Lincoln: the Prairie Years," and the publication of the further researches of the indefatigable Rev. William E. Barton, whose two-volume "Life of Abraham Lincoln" of 1925 was his third important contribution to fresh biographical material. Incidentally, it might be added that one bibliography of Lincoln material lists some 2,689 books and pamphlets!

Sandburg's biography, which is wholly devoted to showing Lincoln in his times before he went to the White House, is perhaps as "understanding" a one as has ever been written, because, as another man of their type, the late Stuart Sherman, in writing a review of Sandburg's work, pointed out, "they are good companions, the two of them, and mutually illuminating—Illinoisans both, plain people, admirable story tellers, rationalists, Jeffersonian Democrats both, both non-professing Christians — Lincoln perhaps the completest specimen that has appeared in the Western hemisphere, and both poets withal, made melancholy at times and gentle-hearted by asking themselves what folk remember 'in the dust, in the tombs.'"

But it is to Rev. W. E. Barton that Americans are most indebted for clearing up many mysteries about Lincoln. Barton is a historian who has sought to "tell the truth" about Lincoln, but he is no iconoclast. He has dispelled legends which have grown up in the amazingly short time of half a century, but the Lincoln which he depicts is none the less admirable nor lovable. If anything, he is more so of both and Barton's Lincoln demonstrates all the more clearly that Lincoln needs no myths or legends to enhance his fame.

Among the many interesting revelations made by this biographer are those about the five sons of Mrs. Lydia Bixby, who were the inspiration for the famous Bixby Letter which was delivered to the Boston mother on Thanksgiving day, 1864, with a Thanksgiving dinner and a considerable sum of money. The inspiration for this letter was a statement from the War department to President Lincoln that Mrs. Bixby was the mother of five sons, four of whom were killed in battle and the fifth died of wounds. The facts which Barton has brought to light are these:

Two sons, Charles N. Bixby and Oliver C. Bixby, were killed in battle, the former at Fredericksburg and the latter in the Crater fight before Petersburg. But they were the only Bixby sons who were killed in action. Another son, Henry C. Bixby, was captured at the battle of Gettysburg but was paroled in 1864, returned to his home, discharged from service and lived until 1871. Edward Bixby, a boy of eighteen, who was supposed to have died of wounds, grew homesick and deserted to the enemy in 1862. After the war he changed his occupation, became a sailor and is known to have been living with his mother in 1871. He died in Chicago in 1909. George Way Bixby, supposed to have been killed at Petersburg, was captured by the Confederates there and a fellow prisoner who returned to Boston reported that he had deserted to the enemy, but later records state that he died in prison. Although he is known to have been living as late as March, 1865, his final fate is unknown.

So of the "five sons who died gloriously in the field of battle," as Lincoln wrote to their mother, only two actually did die thus, one was a known deserter and another may have been. But for all that Lincoln's letter was written under a misapprehension and for all that the Bixby sons may not have been deserving of all the honor it gave them, the fact remains that this letter still stands as a classic of English prose and, as Barton has said, the facts in the case can "detract nothing from the noble and sympathetic spirit of Abraham Lincoln."

The latest Lincoln legend that Mr. Barton has dispelled is in regard to the sleeping sentinel, sentenced to be shot, whom Lincoln is said to have pardoned. The story book version of the affair has Lincoln riding out at dawn to stop the execution, sitting down in a tent with the boy, looking at the photograph of the young soldier's widowed mother and hearing the boy's grateful offer to mortgage the old farm and repay the President for saving his life. Then it has the boy, mortally wounded in battle later, delivering a long oration to his comrades, uttering a prayer for Abraham Lincoln and sending a dying message to the President.

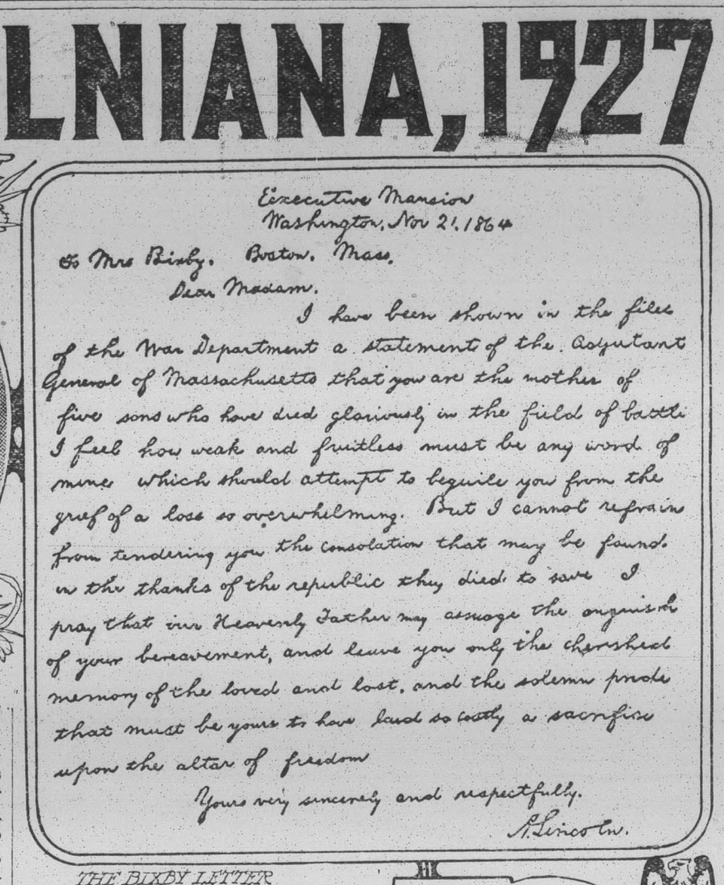
The only thing the matter with the story, says Barton, is that it is all wrong. William Scott of Company K of the Third Vermont, who had been detailed as one of three soldiers guarding the chain bridge over the Potomac, was found sleeping on his post on the night of August 30, 1861. He was court-martialed and sentenced to be shot Monday morning, September 9. The sentence, however, was a bluff and intended by Brig. Gen. William F. Smith, commander of the brigade, to "throw a scare" into the brigade and impress upon these volunteers the stern necessities of military life. The bluff worked and a four-page petition, signed by the most of the regiment and begging clemency for Scott, was presented to the brigade commander. Upon General Smith's recommendation General McClellan issued a pardon.

Lincoln had little or nothing to do with the case. It is true that he was concerned about the case and "simply as a matter of form" made the request to McClellan that Scott's life be spared. He let the fact of his request be known to impress upon the soldiers the seriousness of Scott's offense, for when the pardon was read before the regiment, the warning was uttered that nothing short of the President's request had saved this soldier and that the President was not likely to do it again.

Nor did the dramatic tent scene take place. The "widowed mother" did not exist. Both of Scott's parents were living at the time. Part of the story about Scott's later career is true—that part which tells of his death. He was mortally wounded at the battle of Lee's Mill April 16, 1862, and died the next day. But he did not deliver a dying oration nor a prayer for the President. The surgeon who attended him has stated that he was in a comatose condition to the moment of his death.

Although Lincoln was not directly responsible for saving the life of this sleeping sentinel, there was a similar case later in the war in which he did exercise this clemency. In January, 1864, Henry C. Fuller of Company C, One Hundred and Eighteenth New York volunteers, was sentenced to be shot for falling asleep at his post. One of his comrades, Rowland C. Kellogg, happened to be writing to his father, Congressman Orlando Kellogg of New York, at the time, and in a postscript to his letter told of the sentence that had been passed upon his friend "Hank." Orlando Kellogg had first known Lincoln when both were in congress in the '40s, and during the Civil war they had renewed their acquaintance and become fast friends.

Immediately upon receipt of the letter, Congressman Kellogg went to the White House, even though it was late at night, to plead for Fuller's life. According to the story, he told the President that "the boys of the One Hundred and Eighteenth didn't go to war to be shot that way." Lincoln decided to save Fuller's life and issued the necessary papers which were carried back to camp by Chaplain Charles L. Hagar, who had brought young Kellogg's letter to the congressman. The chaplain arrived just in time to prevent the execution.



Executive Mansion
Washington, Nov 21, 1864

To Mrs Bixby. Boston. Mass.

Dear Madam.

I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously in the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom

Yours very sincerely and respectfully.

A. Lincoln.

Extremes of Zeal

St. Bernard, St. Francis and Savonarola are said to have injured their health by over-enthusiastic fasting and other ascetic practices, while Martin Luther, after starving himself in the monastery to the point of emaciation, went, after his break with Rome, to the opposite extreme and suffered the consequences of high living. He drank wine, as he put it, "to spite the devil," that is, the devil in the form of monasticism. He meant well, however, for he said: "We ought to do our part, and take care of our bodies; but when we are tempted, abstinence is a hundred times worse than eating and drinking."—Scientific Monthly.

Not for Father

This story of a girl and a pipe is told in a downtown cigar store:

"I wish to buy a pipe," she said to the young woman behind the cigar store counter—"for my father."

She chose a pipe of a type already "broken in" and went away apparently satisfied that her father would like it.

Later on, when a young man had taken the place of the girl behind the counter, the fair customer returned with the pipe.

"What's the matter? Didn't your father like it?" the youth queried.

"I didn't get it for my father," she replied. "And I like it well enough, but the darned thing won't draw."—Pittsburgh Post.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

SKYSCRAPER FAIRY

First I must tell you what the Skyscraper Fairy wore. She wore a dress of the loveliest shade of blue—that shade of blue that comes just before dawn and creeps over the city buildings and any hills that there may be in the distance.

It was made in points, too, points from her skirt, points from her shoulders and the sleeves went off in points.

On her head was a crown that was made of blue, too, only there was just the faintest suggestion of rose in its coloring and there were a few very, very faint, very little, very small stars that you could just see if you looked very closely.

Her home was on the top of the tallest skyscraper in a big city of skyscrapers. She lived there a great deal of the time and she called it her home—though of course she had her Fairyland home, too, and she used to go wandering and visiting a great deal of the time.

She used to go at dusk when the city is beginning to have soft shadows over it so that all its dirt and ugliness disappear, and the bright lights of the city and the faint lights from the stars and the deep, deep violet shadows take the place of the things that stand out so plainly in the daylight.

But it was not only because the city was so lovely at twilight time and just at sunset time, too, when the great big sun sank down behind the great big city, that the Skyscraper fairy loved it.

It was because then she used to go around to see her many little friends.

She went to visit the children. And she had so many friends among them.

They did not exactly know she was the one who came to see them, but they knew often at night how happy

they were when they looked out of their city windows and saw the mysterious, wonderful city lights, and heard the strange, muffled sounds of the city streets.

They did not know why such wonderful thoughts came to them then—thoughts they never could express—they did not know quite why they felt so happy and why their imaginations had such a good time without just exactly letting them into the secret.

For the Skyscraper fairy wanted to make them all have as interesting a time as the children who were visited by fairies everywhere else. So every city had its Skyscraper fairy and her workers. The first Skyscraper fairy of all had seen to that.

She knew that back of so many big apartment house buildings with their hundreds of windows and so many other huge big city places that looked so hard and cold on the outside, were plenty of wonderful children.

And she took them Fairyland thoughts.

At dusk, too, she used to go around and see them as they awoke and made them feel something of the same early morning freshness that they would have felt if they had lived in the country.

Oh, how the Skyscraper fairy knew them.

She knew how they used to go to the big parks in the afternoon to play, she knew how they used to go and visit the zoo.

She knew how they used to go and feed the pigeons and the ducks and the squirrels.

She knew how they used to draw with their pieces of chalk on the stone walks that were in some of the smaller parks where they went.

She used to watch them as they played—then, of course, in true Fairyland style she wore a cloak so dazzling that they could no more have looked at her than they could have looked at the sun.

She loved her city children and she knew how they, too, loved fairies and she loved the city with its big, hard buildings which softened in the afternoon when the sun set, and as the lights came out, and again in the morning when the blue colors rested over the whole, whole city of skyscrapers.

New Type

The youngster very proudly showed mother the picture she had been drawing. It was supposed to represent a house, surrounded by trees. Mother was critical. "Just look at that house," she said. "It's too big; it's as tall as the trees."

The youngster looked scornful. "O, this is an apartment house," she said. —Springfield Union.

In Later Years of Life

Good Elimination is More Than Ever Important.

AS we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. Proper function cleanses the blood stream thoroughly. Sluggish function is apt to permit some retention of uric acid and other poisons. This tends to make one tired, listless and achy—to have drowsy headaches and dizziness and perhaps a toxic backache. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passages. Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills in this condition. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

MEETING M. B. CHAMBER NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce will be held next Monday night, Feb. 28, at the Mission Beach Casino, at 7:45 o'clock. The meetings hereafter will be held on the mezzaning floor of the Casino and all interested are most cordially invited. Come and cooperate.

THE PASTIME LIBRARY OPENS IN MISSION BEACH

The Pastime Library, located on Mission Blvd., near Portsmouth Court, is an innovation over which the residents of Mission Beach are rejoicing. To be able to obtain the latest fiction for the nominal sum of three cents a day, and without the time, trouble and expense of going to the San Diego Public Library and then probably finding the book out, is a real luxury to the reading public of our beach. Mrs. Walter Skelley, who is the pioneer in this particular branch of development, announces at present some sixty volumes of the very latest fiction on hand, with another shipment which was delayed by the storm, due at any time. A few of those which may now be obtained are, "Under the Tonto Rim" by Zane Grey; "The Big Mogul" by Joseph Lincoln; "Show Boat" by Edna Ferber; "The Understanding Heart" by Peter B. Kyne; "The Black Hunter" by James Oliver Curwood; "Sorrel and Son" by Warwick Deeping; "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" by John Erskin; "Tides" by Julian Street. The residents of Mission Beach congratulate Mrs. Skelley on her initiative and wish her the very best of success in this venture.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Goldberg of Los Angeles have been the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Becker, 801 Nantasket Court.

Mrs. Wilkinson presented a number of her pupils in a piano recital last Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. John Borg, 824 Island Court.

Mrs. John Chambers, Mrs. W. T. Inman, Mrs. Edward J. Wonder, Mrs. Estelle McNall and Mrs. J. A. Wheeler were guests at the military bridge luncheon given last Saturday by Mrs. C. A. Brown of Denver. Mrs. Brown who has been a house guest of Mrs. McNall for the past three months, is leaving very shortly for her Colorado home.

Last evening, February 25th, the Boy Scouts of Mission Beach, Troop 81, were hosts to the public at a scout meeting held at Shirley Cottage. This meeting was rendered unusually interesting by the presence of William Tomkins, Indian Sign language expert who made an address on the ancient art of sign writing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCoy who left for Phoenix, Ariz., on February 7th have returned home. Mr. and Mrs. McCoy were marooned for four days at Jacumba.

Mrs. May Chapel was hostess to a group of friends at the card party given by the Civic Center on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Chapel's guests were Mrs. J. A. Harris, Mrs. Jessie Morgan and Mrs. E. DeLane.

The Mission Beach Choral department, of the Mission Beach Woman's Club, under the direction of Mrs. Bernice Ellis Young, met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry K. Turner, 702 Verona Court.

At the union church service next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the theme of Rev. D. T. Reed's address will be "We Are Workers Together With God". Services are held in the school building on Santa Barbara Place. Sunday school is held at 9:30 o'clock.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Mission Beach met last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Borg, 824 Island Court.

Preparations are being made to hold swimming meets in the Mission Beach Plunge by the Army and Navy Academy, Point Loma High and Coronado High Schools.

Lieut. John M. McNulty has returned from Washington via New York, arriving home the latter part of last week. Since that time he has made two trips to Los Angeles with the U. S. S. Eagle 34, carrying government mail.

Last Tuesday afternoon Mrs. C. T. Schulze and their son, Laurence, motored to their ranch near Wellton, Ariz., for the week end.

PASTIME LIBRARY, open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Mrs. Walter Skelley, Librarian, Mission Beach.
